Read the passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 1 to 8.

When several farmers merge plots into a single "project farm", they use digital tools to make that teamwork far more effective. GPS mapping, drones, and in-field sensors build a live, shared picture of soil types, weather shifts, and plant growth. Because everyone works on the same data, the team can settle seeding dates, determine when to spray, and track machinery in real time. What once depended on guesswork is now driven by verifiable information.

With GPS technology, farmers can accurately map out their fields and create customised planting plans. Seeding machines change their rate on the fly, drones spray pests on targeted zones, and smart spreaders apply fertiliser only where data shows a need. Because inputs go exactly where they help, fields yield more while chemical runoff falls. Trials report considerable savings on seed, fuel, and sprays – benefits the partners split at the season's end.

Water management is just as precise. Specialised equipment tracks moisture every hour, and forecast apps predict rain, wind, or heatwaves. Automated pumps deliver measured water amounts to thirsty zones and stop when a storm is coming, slashing waste and energy bills. The result is steadier yields in dry years, fewer nutrients washed away, and a smaller water footprint for the whole partnership. Smart irrigation also helps limit weed growth, reducing herbicide use.

The journey from field to market is equally digital. Cloud platforms record harvest weights, storage temperatures, and shipment times the moment they change, while blockchain records freeze each entry so customers can rely on it. Analytic tools browse the records to indicate weak points in the procedure, forecast prices, and suggest better planting plans for the next season to project partners. This makes project farming both profitable and sustainable.

Question 1. The word settle in paragraph 1 mostly means _____.

- A. decide B. announce C. expect D. exchange

Question 2. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in paragraph 1 as information displayed on a live, shared picture?

- A. soil types B. weather shifts C. plant growth D. drones

Question 3. The word their in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

- A. planting plans B. Seeding machines C. fields D. farmers

Question 4. Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 2?

- A. As resources are directed to the areas that need them, harvests increase and pollution from excess chemicals declines.
B. When chemicals are placed only where they are needed, productivity increases yet more overdue chemicals are released.
C. There is an increase in chemical wastage and crop output though fewer resources are used for the indicated land area.
D. Precise application of fertilisers and sprays to required areas raises crop output but in turn increases chemical wastage.

Question 5. The word slashing in paragraph 3 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. reducing B. increasing C. converting D. disposing Question 6. Which of the following is TRUE according to paragraph 4?

- A. Analytic tools offer suggestions for better planting plans for the following season.
B. Project partners are unable to forecast prices of crops in the following season.
C. Buyers have little reliable information on harvest weights and storage temperatures.
D. Farmers regard cloud platforms the best tools to improve the quality of their crops.

Question 7. Which paragraph mentions approaches to different weather patterns?

- A. Paragraph 1 B. Paragraph 4 C. Paragraph 3 D. Paragraph 2

Question 8. Which paragraph mentions real-time tracking of produce?

- A. Paragraph 2 B. Paragraph 3 C. Paragraph 1 D. Paragraph 4

Mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best arrangement of utterances or sentences to make a cohesive and coherent exchange or text in each of the following questions from 9 to 13.

Question 9. a. The developments demonstrate a clear modernisation of the city of Paragon, transforming it from a primarily residential locality into a more diverse and economically vibrant area.

b. This shift was further evidenced by the industrialisation of the surrounding agricultural land, with the appearance of some plants and factories.

c. Residential areas were noticeably transformed, with the replacement of established terraced housing with new dwellings and the relocation of the original park.

d. Simultaneously, a significant expansion of commercial infrastructure took place, most prominently with the construction of a large supermarket and an accompanying car park where housing once stood.

e. Between 2000 and 2015, the outskirts of Paragon city underwent a dramatic reshaping, indicating a move towards urban regeneration and increased commercial activity.

We seem to be entering a boom era for greenwashing – the tactic of covering routine pollution in eco-friendly language. [1] Picture running a high-emitting corporation: meaningful decarbonisation would demand painful negotiations, huge capital outlays, and a full redesign of the business model. Hiring an expert agency to splash “carbon-neutral” or “net-zero” across products is far easier, buying time while emissions remain untouched.

Consumers meet this sleight of hand everywhere. Airlines sell “carbon-neutral” flights, filling stations boast about “net-zero” fuel, and breakfast bacon is re-labelled as planet-safe. Advertising spin is old, yet today it is manipulated to conceal ongoing environmental damage. Social media influencers and glossy sustainability reports amplify these claims, broadcasting the narrative far beyond traditional marketing channels.

The term greenwashing emerged in the 1980s, an era of oil spills and growing climate science, but the practice has exploded only recently. [II] Intensifying public anxiety over global heating and ecosystem collapse has placed companies under sharp scrutiny; many boards therefore choose eye-catching PR over the tougher route of restructuring supply chains, energy sources, and product lines. Regulators on both sides of the Atlantic are struggling to police false eco-claims, yet enforcement still lags behind corporate ingenuity. Investors, eager to protect short-term returns, frequently applaud these surface-level initiatives, reinforcing the cycle. [III] No sector illustrates the issue better than oil and gas. Having realised that denying climate science now backfires, the industry has swapped denial for "green" paint. Press releases trumpet potential renewable ventures while drilling plans expand unabated.

Why does this matter? Greenwashing and climate denial share a core objective: to postpone the deep emission cuts claimed by scientists as urgent this decade. [IV] Whereas denial disputes the crisis, greenwashing misleads the public into believing problems are solved, thereby eroding consumer advocacy of genuine environmental actions and stalling regulatory reforms. In effect, it acts as a soothing lullaby, guiding society ever closer to ecological breakdown while fostering a false sense of progress. Exposing the facade – and insisting on verifiable, measurable carbon reductions – is essential if rhetoric is to give way to real action.

Question 20. According to paragraph 1, having products claimed as eco-friendly rather than conducting meaningful decarbonisation will _____.

- A. lead to delays without solving the current emission problem
- B. bring about a full redesign of the business model of a company
- C. involve spending a huge amount of money paying the agency
- D. cause physical injuries to those involved in the negotiation

Question 21. The word manipulated in paragraph 2 mostly means _____.

- A. purposely adjusted
- B. hastily produced
- C. randomly deployed
- D. legally regulated

Question 22. Which of the following best summarises paragraph 2?

- A. Social media influencers and impressive reports have a role to play in the dissemination of deceptive environmental claims.
- B. Commercials for everyday products and services, ranging from holiday bookings to petrol pumps and bacon packs, are prevalent on unconventional marketing channels.
- C. Sustainability buzzwords now fill every sector, with their reach being amplified by influencers and polished reports.
- D. The stories about greenwashing reach a much wider audience due to the joint effort of social media and traditional marketing channels.

Question 23. What causes corporate boards to adopt greenwashing?

- A. Public belief that carbon reductions are unnecessary
- B. Growing public interest in the development of climate science
- C. Public pressure on corporations to opt for PR campaigns
- D. Increasing public concern about environmental issues

Question 24. What challenge do regulators face in monitoring greenwashing claims?

- A. Insufficient public support
- B. A lack of clear terminology
- C. Enforcement that falls behind corporate creativity
- D. Conflicting laws on both sides of the Atlantic

Question 25. The phrase the practice in paragraph 3 refers to _____.

- A. global heating
- B. climate science
- C. scrutiny
- D. greenwashing

Question 26. Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 4?

- A. The real solution to the issue of carbon is to verify and measure carbon reductions rather than just raise public awareness through campaigns.
- B. For empty slogans to be realised into moves, revelations about greenwashing and practical measures to reduce carbon are required.
- C. Greenwashing is, in fact, a fallacy and therefore should be replaced by feasible actions which are encouraged through public movements.
- D. To make way for meaningful activities in reality, it is vital to expose the public to proper and specific measures to reduce emissions.

Question 27. Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. Investors who value long-term environmental impact put pressure on companies to implement substantial structural reforms.
- B. The shift from denying climate science to applying "green" paint reflects high-emitting industries' genuine commitment to renewables.
- C. Regulators are effectively utilising the tools and resources to verify most environmental claims, tackling the wide spread of eco-labels.
- D. Greenwashing brings corporations benefits in terms of finance and reputation without having to reform their core operations.

Question 28. Where in the passage does the following sentence best fit?

Yet greenwashing is arguably more insidious.

- A. [II]
- B. [I]
- C. [III]
- D. [IV]

Question 29. Which of the following best summarises the passage?

- A. Once a prevalent strategy of corporations in response to public scrutiny, climate denial is losing its effectiveness and has to be replaced by greenwashing.
- B. Instead of investing in meaningful decarbonisation, major emitters have a tendency to opt for denying the claim of "carbon-neutral" or "net-zero" on their product lines.

- C. High-emitting sectors follow the trend of greenwashing, boasting about promising renewable ventures in press releases while quietly going on damaging the environment.
- D. Greenwashing is surging as firms cover ongoing pollution in eco-friendly rhetoric, distracting the public and postponing the deep emission cuts scientists deem urgent.

The process of sorting through the various holidays on offer and determining which is the best for you is inevitably complex and individual personality traits will determine the eventual decision. Some people undertake a process of extensive problem solving, in which information is sought about a series of products, (36) _____. Other consumers with no patience to explore a variety of choices (37) _____, for the sake of their convenience rather than trying to guarantee that they buy the best possible product. This is known as limited problem solving.

Many consumers engage in routinised response behaviour, in which choices change relatively little over time. (38) _____. Also, some holidaymakers who have been content with a particular company or destination in the past may opt for the same experience again.

Finally, some consumers will buy on impulse. (39) _____. It is, in fact, a pattern of behaviour that is becoming increasingly prevalent – to the dismay of the operators, who then have less scope for forward planning and reduced opportunities to gain from investing deposits in the short term. (40) _____, where 'distressed stock' needs to be cleared at short notice and this can be stimulated by late availability offers particularly.
